100,000 WORKERS TO BE TRAINED IN 1950 -- Repatriant, No 42, 21 Oct 49

During 1945-46, approximately 200,000 workers and technical personnel were sent to factories and mines located in the Regained Territories. At that time it was necessary to train entire crews for the newly organized enterprises. Nearly every factory, mine, and metallurgical plant became a training place for cadres. Over 5,000 courses were organized. The first schools of this type were opened in May 1945. In October 1945 there were 72 schools with 6,000 students. Schools offered accelerated programs. In this way, nearly 100,000 persons were trained in various specialized trades.

In addition, youths employed by industry were trained in 3-year industrial schools. It was necessary to establish regular industrial schools, high schools, and colleges. The number of these schools is constantly increasing. During 3 academic years, 600 new schools and over 200 boarding and semiboarding schools were opened to 40,000 young people.

Almost all the vocational training schools are under the management and supervision of the Central Office for Vocational Training.

For the academic year 1948-49, the Central Office for Vocational Training had 2,610 schools and 420,000 students registered. Beginning in 1951, these vocational training schools will supply the industries with 18,500 technicians and nearly 100,000 trained workers, master craftsmen, etc.
